READING

OUR INTENT

At Kings Road Primary School, our aim is to provide our pupils with a broad rich curriculum that reflects the community we serve and the wider world. Our English curriculum aims to inspire our children to take risks in their reading choices, access both classic and contemporary texts, write confidently for a range of audiences and purposes and to speak with self-assurance in front of others.

IMPLEMENTATION

Reading is implemented confidently across the Kings Road curriculum. Reading is taught at the beginning of a unit of work to allow children to explore the text as a reader and then as a writer. A range of text types are taught including those found online, through visual literacy and also through film and television. We use a wide range of resources to support with implementing our curriculum for reading including the Little Wandle and Big Cat reading books, CLPE's 'The Power of Reading' scheme as well as class sets of books to support 'The Power of Reading'. To support what works best for our children, adults model as readers, sharing best practice for fluency and comprehension. To encourage a reading for pleasure initiative, adults will also discuss personal choices and preferences of books they read.

IMPACT

In the long term, we would hope that pupils leave Kings Road with a love of reading and are able to range a read of fiction, non fiction and poetry that has been accessed across the whole curriculum. Children should feel confident enough to apply vocabulary they have learnt through reading into their writing. Lastly, we hope children at Kings Road are able to speak confidently about their reading choices and the value that reading has in allowing them to become life-long learners.
